All trackers need the ability to lay a track and know without a doubt what direction the track goes, where the corners are located, and where the articles are placed. This workshop is designed to teach skills needed to lay an effective track in training and for tracking tests. We provide strategies to lay a track without the aid of flags or markers. Skills such as sight markers and map making in a fun morning of hands-on activities designed to give you confidence in both field and urban settings. A copy of Guidelines For Tracklayers published by Palo Alto Foothills Tracking Association (PAFTA) is provided.
